Guadalajara is the capital of the State of Jalisco and the second largest city of México. It is known worldwide for its folklore, the renowned Mariachi, handcrafts, tequila and the national sport, charreadia. Few cities can offer such a variety of interesting things to see and do, involving the visitors in a cultural, historical and legendary atmosphere. You can begin your enchantment by visiting the Historical Center and its magnificent buildings. The rich colonial legacy can be seen all over the city, including the Cathedral, featuring the symbol that has become emblematic of Guadalajara, its towers. Tlaquepaque and Tonalá are located out of the city limit, both towns are worldwide known for the quality and wide variety of its handcraft. The average temperature of Guadalajara is 74°F.
Guadalajara is full of surprises. A cosmopolitan metropolis modern, but authentic and traditional at the same time. Many of things which are typically associated with Mexico have their origins in Jalisco. These include rodeos called charreadas, mariachis, and of course the tequila.

Charrería

When the Spanish first settled in colonial Mexico had very large cattle-raising estates and soon the indigenous people known as “vaqueros” became excellent horsemen. Smaller landholders, known as rancheros or ranchers, were the first genuine “charros” and they are credited as the inventors of the charreada. The charro’s elaborate costume and trappings reflect the merging of three distinct cultures that create the Mexican cowboy: Arabian, Spanish and indigenous American. Gentleman cowboys adorned their trousers with silver buttons down the heavily embroidered outside seams. The short jackets and wide-brim, cone-shaped hats were trimmed in a likewise fashion. Today it has become a national sport a multi-colored spectacle.

Mariachi

It has become synonymous of joy, music and party. The mariachi costume is famous worldwide. Traditional mariachi include guitars the “vihuela”, a high-pitched, round-backed guitar which provides rhythm, and a bass guitar called a “guitarrón”, violins and trumpets. The mariachis use the charro outfit, usually in black with silver-colored buttons and chains running down their pants legs and up their vests, and with the unmistakable large Mariachi hat.

Although there is still much controversy, it seems that this type of musical ensembles were originated in north of the state, in the region of Los Altos de Jalisco. Most legends put the origin of the modern mariachi in the town of Cocula.

The word mariachi was thought to have derived from the French word “mariage” (marriage) dating from the French Intervention in Mexico in the 1860s. The origin of the word is still in dispute but most of the prominent theories state that it has indigenous roots.

In Guadalajara, you may see them playing in a restaurant or bar, or in the traditional Mariachi Plaza, and of course in the famous Parian in Tlaquepaque.
Tequila

It is a distilled beverage made from blue agave plant, primarily in the area surrounding the town of Tequila. It is the most popular and representative beverage of Mexico in the world. The name tequila is a controlled denomination of origin, recognized internationally.

Tequila is usually bottled in one of five categories:

- Blanco ("white") also known as "silver", un-aged and bottled or stored immediately after distillation.
- Reposado ("rested"), aged a minimum of two months, but less than a year in oak barrels. It is softer than white, has a golden color and its flavor has a hint of oak.
- Añejo ("aged" or "vintage"), aged a minimum of one year, but less than three years in small white oak barrels. The color ranges from gold to dark amber strong, its taste is strongly impregnated with wood. If it has been aged for at least three years, can be considered Extra Añejo ("extra aged" or "ultra aged").

The agave landscape and the ancient industrial facilities of Tequila have now been inscribed on UNESCO’s World Heritage List.

Guadalajara is a destination that surprises all year long with festivals and events throughout the year. Some of the most important are:

Romería de la Catedral Metropolitana a la Basílica de Zapopan (Pilgrimage from the Metropolitan Cathedral to the Basilica of Zapopan)

An annual procession honoring Our Lady of Zapopan celebrates the feast day of the Virgin of Zapopan on October 12th. Around dawn, pre-Columbian dancers, mendicants, priest and seminarians carries her small, dark figure, and begins the 5-hour ride from the Cathedral of Guadalajara to the Basilica of Zapopan along with thousands of pilgrims. The event ends with traditional dances and evening. During the months leading up to the feast day, the figure visits churches all over the city. You will likely see neighborhoods decorated with paper streamers and banners honoring the Virgin’s visit to the local church.

Anniversary of the City

February 14th, a number of festivities commemorate the founding of Guadalajara in 1542. Open-air concerts, live music and a marathon race are just some of the attractions on offer around the City Hall, Plaza Guadalajara, Plaza Fundadores, and the Rotonda de los Hombres Ilustres (Rotunda of Illustrious Men), and also the university campus.

International Mariachi Fair

This annual festival captures the essence of the city. Performances take place on the streets of downtown and in various venues throughout the city. Mariachi bands from all over the world participate, coming from countries such as Venezuela, Cuba, Belgium, Chile, France, Canada and United States. The inaugural parade has become an icon of the city, spectators will be able to see all of the participating mariachi groups as well as floats, folkloric ballet troupes and representatives from a variety of both local and national Charro groups.
May Cultural Festival

The event is driven by Jalisco’s Secretary of Culture and will take place at many locations in the state of Jalisco, including many in Guadalajara’s Degollado Theater. This festival includes cultural events such as concerts, exhibits, film screenings, dance performances and gastronomic tastings. Since 2003, this event exhibits the cultures of other countries, like Hungary, Poland, Austria, Spain, Mexico, Germany and Japan, among others.

Guadalajara International Book Fair

It is the most important publishing gathering in Ibero-America. It is also an amazing cultural festival. For nine days, people willingly stand in long lines to listen to their favorite authors, the city is filled with the music, arts, cinema and theatre from the featured country or region Guest of Honor. It takes place every year starting the last Saturday in November.

Octoberfest

A month-long event from the first Saturday in October to the first Sunday of November. Events take place in the Benito Juarez Auditorium and across different locations of Guadalajara, Zapopan, Tlaquepaque, Tonala and Tlajomulco. The festival features live music, plenty of dancing, endless food, exhibitions of art works, carnivals, markets with over 700 vendors, street entertainment and a number of free events. The event started with the traditional parade of floats along Avenida 16 de Septiembre.
The state of Jalisco has an amazing diverse and delicious cuisine, it is arguably one of the most traditional regions of Mexico. When Spanish settlers came to the region they introduced several ingredients to the Mexican diet. This fusion of cuisines and ingredients has made Mexican cuisine one of the most extensive and nuanced cuisines in the world. Classic dishes for the area include the Birria, a dish made of beef, goat, or lamb baked in a sauce with several spices, hot peppers, and chopped onion, prepare it in a barbecue, in a hole in the ground; the pozole, stewlike soup of pork or chicken, hominy, mild chili peppers, and coriander leaves; the pipian, a sauce served as a condiment or marinade sauce for poultry, seafood, pork, and vegetable dishes; tostada de pata, fried tortilla with beef meat; enchiladas tapatías, a corn tortilla rolled around a filling and covered with a creamy poblano chile and tomato sauce; and the famous tortas ahogadas, a sandwich made of a special bread called “birote” (saltier than bread rolls) stuffed with pork covered or “drowned” in a spicy sauce prepared with tomatoes and hot peppers.

If you enjoy the desserts, here you will find a wide variety of sweets like: arroz con leche, rice simmered with condensed milk and flavored with cinnamon sticks and raisins; the capirotada, a type of bread pudding with syrup and fruits; jericallas, a cross between flan and creme brulee; glorias, burned milk candy with nuts; cocadas, made with grated fresh coconut; cajeta de membrillo, a thickened syrup with quince fruit; and sweetened tamarind pulp, among others.

Jalisco is known worldwide for its production of high quality tequila. The famous drink is made from agave grown in the town of Tequila, located less than an hour from Guadalajara.

If you are looking for something softer and a refreshing drink, you can try the tejuino, a cold beverage made from fermented corn.
Shopping in Guadalajara

The destination offers a wide range of possibilities, from modern shopping malls with world-renowned fashion brands, to typical markets where you can find all the traditional products of the region, including the beautiful handicrafts of Jalisco.

Guadalajara is known for its shoe industry. There is a section known as the “shoe zone”, which has practically nothing but shop after shop of women’s dress shoes.

Women’s jewelry is another good that Guadalajara is known for, as well as the art galleries, here you will find unique objects at very good prices.

Tlaquepaque and Tonala are two suburbs, traditional handicraft centers that produce and sell a wide variety of high- and low-temperature pottery, forged iron, cantera stone, brass and copper, marble, miniatures, papier-mâché, textiles, blown glass, rustic furniture, and gesso.

Zapopan is the second most populous municipality in the state of Jalisco and ranks seventh in Mexico. The name Zapopan comes from the Nahuatl word “tzapotl” which means among sapote trees. It is known for its architecture, museums, premier shopping centers, major entertainment venues and for having some of the best hotels in the metropolitan area of Guadalajara. Zapopan also has natural outdoor attractions like El Diente and the Bosque de La Primavera (Forest of the Spring), among others.

Annually, a large procession in the image of Our Lady of the Conception’s honor takes place on the 12th of October. Starting at 6 am, the image is carried on the streets from the Guadalajara Cathedral to the Basilica of Zapopan. The streets, including the wide avenue of Manuel Avila Camacho in Zapopan proper, are packed with dancers, vendors selling traditional food and crafts and spectators. The Basilica of Zapopan is considered the third most important pilgrimage center in the country.

The town’s cultural heritage dates back to the origins of Mesoamerica, with the remains of Chiquihuitillo and shaft tombs. The first peoples to live in this area were the Nahua, the Toltecs and the Otomi, and it was part of one of the most important obsidian trade routes in the area. The village of Santiago de Tequila was founded in 1530 by Cristóbal de Oñate, and it is located about 37 miles west of Guadalajara, approximately one hour drive.

Tequila is surrounded by a unique landscape with bluish-green patches of agave plants, used as a base ingredient of tequila, the renowned Mexican drink. In the evenings and early mornings you can smell the sweet scent of cooked agave, this aroma will captivate your senses. In 1600, Pedro Sánchez de Tagle decided to build a large scale distilling operation based on a local fermented beverage made with the local agave plant, and the tradition started. He also introduced the idea of cultivating this plant, native to the region, on a mass scale.

There are some interesting buildings like the Templo de Santiago Apostol (Temple of the Apostle), built in the 17th century, renowned for its stone facade and main altar; and the “Señor de los Desamparados” (Lord of the Forsaken) Temple constructed in the 18th century.

You can visit: the local gates with a boutique shop that sells Tequila and a Restaurant-Bar offering delicious “cantaritos”, a mix of tequila, lime, orange, and grapefruit soda. The Tequila Industrial Corridor, where the first factories were established. The Historical “Lavaderos” (washing place) in Tequila, located at the end of the old street of taverns, today it has been renovated and you can enjoy a nice walk among gardens and fountains. The Cleofás Mota Gastronomic Market, with a variety of “antojitos” (little cravings prepared in traditional markets). And “The Chapel” Bar, where you can have the traditional “Batanga”.

There are several museums in some of the most important distilleries, including: The National Museum of Tequila (MUNAT), located in a 19th century mansion with six halls where you’ll get a full view of how the production of tequila began, the first distillery machines, the varying types of tequilas, a taste of some fresh off-the-barrel freshly made tequila, and a tour of prized samples on display (Tuesday to Sunday from 10:00 to 17:00 hrs).
The Quinta Sauza has the Grandfathers Museum with three halls presenting the journey through the history of this important and traditional family (Monday to Sunday from 10:00 to 17:00 hrs). “La Cofradía” Site Museum which has respected the distillery facilities in its natural context (Monday to Sunday from 10:00 to 18:00 hrs). The Rubio Distillery Site Museum, with an important collection of photographs, and traditional agave-tending tools used in the production of Tequila (Monday to Sunday from 10:00 to 18:00 hrs).

In the surroundings you can enjoy nature and adventure sports. The Tequila Volcano, an extinct volcano more than 9,000 feet high covered with wooded areas and exotic varieties of orchids, completely safe to hike. The Agua Caliente Canyon, the birdplace of wild species of blue agave. The viewpoint of Chuiquihuitillo, located in Tequila Canyon. The viewpoint of La Cumbre, in the way to this point, you will enjoy the landscape of blue agave fields. "La Toma" Hot Springs, a network of trails leads to a series of pools -- some warm and suitable for swimming, others hot enough for a therapeutic soaking -- stretched out along the deeply forested canyon walls.

Its typical dishes include tequila shrimp, “Tequilero” steak, “salsa borracha” a sauce with dried ancho chiles, orange juice and tequila, agave chicken breast, and tostadas de chorizo (fried tortilla with a type of pork sausage), among others. You can also enjoy a tequila ice cream, mango and plum preserves, the cooked “quiste” (edible flower stalk of the maguey) during the Lenten season; and the traditional ovo water, a typical fruit of the region during August and September.

Some of the most important festivities in town are: the Cultural Festival Tequila Jose Cuervo Foundation, held between March and April, this event includes the presentation of world-class shows at the Jose Cuervo Forum. The Cultural Week, which commemorates the founding of Tequila, held during the first half of April with religious celebrations, a popular festival and fireworks. The Jose Cuervo International Marathon, which is held the third Sunday of November. The National Festival of Tequila is held every year from November 29th to December 12th, the main distillers in the area all have a presence with samples of their tequila; there are also events and a parade with floats, mariachis, fireworks and rides.

The Tequila Designation of Origin, the nomination of Magic Town and The history and worldwide popularity of the drink has led to the town of Tequila and the vast agave fields surrounding it to be declared a World Heritage Site, beside it has been named a Magic Town, all together along with the ancient distilleries and haciendas make this town a place worth visiting.

Tequila has become the epicenter of The Tequila Route (Ruta de Tequila) that includes the neighboring municipalities of El Arenal, Amatitan, Magdalena and Teuchitlan, which contain about 150 important tequila facilities, as well as cultural and archeological attractions.

It is approximately 77 miles from Guadalajara in the Southeast region of the state, on the heights of the Sierra del Tigre. It is surrounded by a beautiful forest landscape with streams and waterfalls.

It is a beautiful mountain town full of history and tradition. The people are friendly, the architecture is beautiful, it has vibrant traditions, unique handicrafts, surprising customs and delightful natural settings to practice adventure sports.

The town looks like an alpine village. There are many cabins for rent wrapped in a huge blanket of forests with all of the modern amenities. This is truly an excellent choice for an unforgettable vacation.

This mountain town offers cobbled streets and whitewashed houses with tile roofs, handicrafts made of wood and excellent typical food. But you can also enjoy a horseback ride, cattle drives, hiking, trekking, landscape photography, mountain biking, ATVs, rappelling and the zip line which is located only 15 kilometers from Mazamitla.

Some of the notable structures are: the San Cristóbal Parish, an unusual and fanciful church built on the pyramid base, the Cerro del Tigre, a natural viewpoint which rises to 2,800 meters above the sea level which offers a spectacular sight of the lake of Chapala; the Salto, a beautiful waterfall basalt walls about 35 meters high; the Municipal Park “La Zanja”, with children's playground and BBQ’s picnic areas; the “Tabardillo”, a great viewpoint to enjoy a beautiful panorama of the town and the surrounding mountain range; the Sierra del Tigre, a good camping site and ideal for mountain biking.

The town has a fresh annual temperature of around 21°C, and has all the amenities to make your visit an experience to remember.
This town is 33 kilometers southwest of Guadalajara (a 90 minute drive), is embraced by the Sierra Madre among pine and oak forests, crystal clear streams and rock formations. Tapalpa combines natural beauty with color and tradition. This beautiful town captivates the visitor with its typical provincial atmosphere characterized by cobbled streets and whitewashed houses with roofs of uniform red tile. It is an excellent destination for adventure, outdoor recreation, but also a favorite resting place.

This historical town is best known for its public fountains, known locally as pilas, are still used by the town’s inhabitants as a source of water and each hold their original names, such as Pila de las Culebras (The Snakes’), del Tecolote (The Owl’s), Del Perro (The Dog’s), and La Colorada (The Red One), and each one has a legend associated with it. You may visit the Templo de San Antonio de Padua (Parish of Saint Anthony of Padua), which was built in 1650 by the Franciscans, and the Templo de la Merced (Mercy Temple), a predominantly baroque style with incredible murals and stained glass, truly artistic.

Near the village there are several interesting places like: The Paper Factory (2 km de Tapalpa), built in 1840 was the first in the region; and Atacco (3 km al sur de Tapalpa), with interesting ruins of a temple built by the Franciscans.

For nature lovers: Las Piedrotas - The Huge Rocks- (5 km northwest of Tapalpa) features rock formations in capricious forms, situated right in the middle of the forest and streams where you can practice rappelling and zip line. Los Frailes - The Friars - (9 km al norte de Tapalpa), are also outcroppings of volcanic rocks, but higher than the ones find in Las Piedrotas ideal place for those who like extreme sports. Salto del Nogal - Walnut Break - (18 km south of Tapalpa), a beautiful waterfall of 105 meters high, surrounded by pine and oak forests, a nice place for rappeling. Presa el Nogal - Walnut Dam - (8 km south of Tapalpa), here you'll be sure to catch anything from catfish, to trout while being accompanied by wild ducks and herons, but you can also swim, camping or canoeing. Hacienda la Media Luna (15 km northwest of Tapalpa), picturesque landscape with the hacienda ruins in front of a lake where you can fish bass and tilapia.

Tapalpa is the world-class site and the host of Mexico’s Open Paragliding Championships since 2002. The event starts in Cerro del Balcón (Balcony Hill) and the landing point is Las Piedrotas, an odd outcropping of volcanic rock.
Lake Chapala

Lake Chapala, the largest in Mexico, is a natural reservoir measuring 114,569 ha. It is situated between the states of Jalisco, which includes 86 per cent of the lake’s area, and Michoacan, which contains the remaining 14 per cent. The Lake is about 78 kilometers (50 miles) long from east to west with a maximum north-south width of about 20 kilometers (12.5 miles). It is located 48 km southeast from Guadalajara.

Chapala has become a tourist haven for the beauty of its landscapes, its typical kitchen, but mostly because the lake is surrounded by typical Mexican villages. In addition, the destination is nominated by National Geographic as the 2nd Best Climate in the World, temperatures here are pretty pleasant all year round, and—even better—with no extreme highs and lows with an average temperature of the 70s and 80s F.

Lake Chapala offers endless opportunities for year round recreation and leisure activities for residents and visitors, such as: walking, hiking, sailing, water skiing, golf, tennis and horseback riding among others.

At Lakeside, you will find blocks of stalls, street markets, galleries, and workshops in the area. Antiques, furniture, tapestries, glassware, lamps, wrought-iron furniture, masks, pottery, jewelry, art and handicrafts of all kinds are sold here. In fact, the Lake Chapala area is fast becoming the region's supplier of quality crafts.

Along the lake there are several villages like: Chapala, famous for the production of textiles; Ajijic with a rustic atmosphere and a unique community of artists; Chula Vista and San Juan Cosala, famous for its beautiful hot springs and spas.

Inside the lake is the Scorpion Island with delicious restaurants and Mescal Island called The Presidio for its fortified building used by insurgents in the final stage of the War of Independence, whose ruins still preserved Renaissance.

In this picturesque lake there are two islands, one known as the Island of the Scorpions (for its shape), where besides the scenery, you can also enjoy mouthwatering local dishes and sing with the mariachis. And the second island known as Mescal or Isla Presidio, is a national monument that boasts magnificent ruins of an old fort where Mexican forces fought the Spaniards.

Archaeological Sites

El Ixtépete o Iztepete

It is located south of the municipality of Zapopan. The area is protected as an ecological park of 5 hectares, but it is thought that the total area of the settlement was even bigger.

The site contains a Teotihuacan style pyramid which is twenty meters long, sixteen meters wide and 1.83 meters high. Construction phases of this pyramid date back from the 5th century to the 10th century.

Etzatlán

Its first inhabitants were Nahua with Toltec influence. In El Arenal, an important ceremonial center, with three circular pyramids - the type of constructions made by Guachimontones - and monumental Shaft Tombs. The tombs are often found in groups, archaeologists have placed some of the tombs as early a 900 AD. The depths of the shafts from the surface range from 4.6 meters (15 ft.) to more than 15 meters (50 ft.). In the tomb shown above, there are three large compartments connected by tunnels. The tombs were made for members of the chiefly lineage.

In Etzatlán there is also El Palacio de Ocomo, another of Western Mexico’s unique archaeological sites, is one of the biggest tecpans (palaces) of the ancient Mexico, it has 125 meters for side, and it is considered the more monumental building of this style in Mexico, since measures 1000 square meters. In the site there are remains of terraces, sunken courts, pyramids and platforms.

Guachimontones (Shaft Tombs)

A ceremonial center near the town of Teuchitlán, about an hour west of Guadalajara.

The dominant features at los Guachimontones are circular stepped pyramids in the middle of circular building complexes. Another characteristic of these people was the construction of shaft tombs.

The archaeological site is characterized by formal circular architecture which is unique not only in Mesoamerica, but in the entire world. The site also includes shaft tombs, concentric circular plazas, one of the largest ball courts in northern Mesoamerica, as well as the only known example of a Mesoamerican amphitheater.

The ceremonial building is a perfect circle and its floors are an exact 52 year calendar. A post hole was located at the very highest level, from which the priests held and rock back and forth, simulating the flight of a bird. Such tradition was an offering to Ehecatl, a pre-Columbian deity associated with the wind. Schude: Daily from 10:00 to 17:00 hrs.
This is a tropical paradise which includes a stripe of beautiful beaches in an extension of 95 km from Barra de Navidad to Playa Quemara. Due to its geographical location, its weather is very similar to the weather in Hawaii.
This resort is characterized by its romantic sunsets, warm waters and quiet and isolated beaches. It is an ideal place for those who love being in contact with nature.
Costa Alegre is a Tourist Corridor formed by a combination of beautiful beaches with colorful towns like: Barra de Navidad, a small fishing village with good tourist services and beaches with calm waters ideal for water sports. Melaque, with three different towns – Melaque, San Patricio and Colonia Villa Obregón – all of them with soft sand beaches where you can enjoy swimming. Tenacatita, a small village with nice and isolated beaches like Mora Beach excellent for snorkeling, diving, camping and fishing; here you can rent a “panga” and explore the nearby mangrove. Costa Careyes is formed by several beaches like: Blanca, Rosa, Careyetos, Careyes and Teopa with luxury resorts and condominiums; in these beaches the turtles nest during the summer. The Chamela Bay has a unique landscape with nine islands ideal for snorkeling and diving; here you can also rent a “panga” and visit the Pajarera Island a bird sanctuary.
